Prairie Fare: Gift-Giving Season Includes Gift Drawing For Readers

By Julie Garden-Robinson, Food and Nutrition Specialist, NDSU Extension

"I think it's time to leave," I said to my husband.

My husband picked up our kid, who could transform into a marble statue or a column of wiggly jelly.

At this moment, our kid was a screaming two-by-four tucked under my husband's arm enroute to the

This was a little embarrassing.

We had been looking at the toy section. Our children wanted a particular toy right then. Eventually, our child learned that the "screaming statue" tactic resulted in our leaving the store immediately.

Now that our kids are in their 20s, selecting gifts isn't as easy as a trip to the toy store. Gift cards seem to be a logical choice that allow people to choose what they want. Sometimes, however, gift cards get tucked in a drawer and are found much later, if ever.

According to a Credit Summit survey of 1,200 consumers, half of consumers lose their gift cards.

An estimated $21 billion is tied up in unused gift cards.

While gift cards are appreciated by many, what are some other gifts for adults? If you give gifts for the holidays, consider a few ideas and free online resources from NDSU Extension.

Give a gift that promotes safe food preparation. A food thermometer, an apron and a set of potholders are usually welcome additions to a kitchen. Grilling enthusiasts might enjoy long-handled food turners. If you like to sew, you can make the potholders and apron in the favorite colors and design of

See www.ag.ndsu.edu/food and check out the "Home Food Safety" section of handouts about thermometers, food storage and more. They are free to download and share.

Create a cookbook of favorite family recipes. If you have the actual recipes in the handwriting of a relative, photocopy or scan them to make an extra-special keep-sake. Add some digital photos of the

• Although great-grandma's home food preservation recipes might be tempting to share, we caution against sharing "old" food preservation recipes. Cookie and cake recipes usually are fine to share, but food preservation research has led to changes in our recommendations.

• Be sure to compare "old" canning recipes to current ones. Sometimes, canning recipes withstand the test of time, but often they do not. See www.ag.ndsu.edu/food and go to "Food Preservation" for the latest information.

3. Consider a gift that helps you avoid food waste. We all have experienced increased prices at grocery stores. Unfortunately, an estimated 31 percent of food is wasted at the retail level or at home according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service.

Let's work together to avoid throwing away edible food. How about a new set of microwaveable bowls, freezer containers and/or an insulted lunch bag to make use of these "planned-over" foods? Consider composting leftover food scraps, such as potato peelings.

• See the "Food Preparation" section at ag.ndsu.edu/food. The "Pinchin' Pennies in the Kitchen" series of publications have ideas to make foods from what you have on hand. These can be printed into a booklet of ideas.

• See "How to Compost" at ndsu. edu/agriculture/extension/publications/how-compost if you want to learn how to turn vegetable table scraps into "black gold" for growing

4. I have a potential gift as a thank you for reading "Prairie Fare." We created 2024 recipe calendars. I'd like your feedback and invite you to enter a drawing for 50 free calendars (one per person) by December

Go to https://forms.gle/L1R5qUbthp4SQEE99 and enter the two-minute survey. If the survey link does not work for you, please send an email to julie.garden-robinson@ndsu.edu and include your name, full mailing address and an idea for a column topic. Be sure the subject of your email says "calendar

How about some beverage, soup or bread mixes as gifts for family and friends? We have several "quick mixes" (at ndsu.ag/quick-mixes), which can be made as a recipe or layered in a jar for a gift mix. Herb Quick Bread

2 cups all-purpose white flour 1 cup whole-wheat flour 1 tablespoon baking powder 3 teaspoons caraway seeds

½ teaspoon salt ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg ½ teaspoon dried thyme

If making a gift mix, layer the recipe ingredients in a clean quartsized jar. Cover the jar tightly with a lid, decorate if desired and attach a copy of the recipe card.

1 cup fat-free milk 1/3 cup canola oil

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a mixing bowl, whisk together dry ingredients. In a separate bowl, whisk the egg, milk and oil. Add the wet ingredients to dry ingredients and stir until moistened. Place mixture in a 9- by 5-inch loaf pan coated with nonstick cooking spray and bake for 40 to 50 minutes. Cool for 10 minutes in pan; remove from pan and place on a wire cooling rack. Makes 16 servings. Each serving

Mountain Lion Zone 1 Late Season Opens

North Dakota's early mountain lion season in Zone 1 closed November 26, and the late season, when hunters can pursue lions with dogs, is open.

During the early season, hunters took six cats from a harvest limit of eight. Under the season structure, a conditional season could open five days after the late season closes for hunters to pursue the additional two mountain lions that were not taken.

The late season in Zone 1 is scheduled to run through March 31, 2024, or until the harvest limit is reached. The late season harvest limit is seven total lions or three female lions, whichever comes first.

Hunters are advised to check the status of the late season by visiting the North Dakota Game and Fish Department website, gf.nd.gov.

Zone 1 includes land in western North Dakota south of ND Highway 1804 from the Montana border to the point where ND Highway 1804 lies directly across Lake Sakakawea from ND Highway 8, cross Lake Sakakawea, then south along ND Highway 8 to ND Highway 200,

The mountain lion season in Zone 2, which is the rest of the state outside Zone 1, has no harvest limit and is open through March 31, 2024.

The mountain lion season is open only to North Dakota residents. Hunters need a furbearer or combination license to participate.

Late Season Hunting Dates

The statewide duck and whitefronted goose seasons close December 3. However, duck hunting in the high plains unit reopens December 9 and continues through December

In addition, the season for Canada geese closes December 16 in the eastern zone, December 21 in the western zone and December 29 in the Missouri River zone. Light goose hunting closes statewide December 29.

Archery deer, fall turkey, sharptailed and ruffed grouse, partridge and pheasant hunting seasons continue through January 7.

The season for tree squirrels closes February 29.

Dakota Datebook: Tower University

By Dave Seifert

Many might be surprised that on December 1, 1886, classes began at Tower University in Tower City, North Dakota.

Founded and supported by the Baptists in Dakota Territory and the people of Tower City, the coeducational university started classes with an enrollment of fourteen students. Classes were held in a converted hotel.

The daily program of instruction included Chapel, Philosophy, Reading, Arithmetic, Algebra and Physical Geography. Instrumental and vocal music was also available to students.

Tuition was $8 per term and the furnished rooms went for 50 cents/ week. Board contracts ran the students an additional $3 per week.

Due to lack of enrollment, Tower University was forced to close its doors in 1889, after only two years of operation. Tower City History, 1879-1979 Centennial Edition, pg.
