Devils Lake wins appeal to stay in Class A basketball

By Mojo Hill, Journal Sports

Devils Lake won an appeal to the NDHSAA on Tuesday to keep both of its basketball teams in Class A.

Devils Lake, on behalf of its boys' and girls' teams, presented to the NDHSAA Classification Committee alongside the Valley City girls, Kindred boys, Westhope/Newburg boys and Bishop Ryan boys. Each of those squads won its appeal to stay in its respective class.

All of those teams have one thing in common: They accumulated six or more tournament performance factor points over the first two years of the three-class basketball system, which was adopted in North Dakota last season. The original procedure outlined by the NDHSAA declared that a team with at least six points over a three-year period would be promoted to the next-highest division, with schools having an opportunity to appeal.

The maximum points that a team can earn in one year is four. The Devils Lake boys and girls each reached that mark last year with a state title. Teams are awarded three points for being a state runner-up, so the Firebirds boys totaled seven points over the last two years. The girls reached a state semifinal this season, which gave them two extra points and six overall.

A news release on NewsDakota.com wrote that Devils Lake was represented by multiple officials, including athletic director Jason Wiberg. Per the article, they argued that Devils Lake was an "oddball" in terms of enrollment, given that the town is larger than a typical Class B town but significantly smaller than Fargo, Grand Forks, etc. The Firebirds' struggles
