KEM Electric Cooperative wraps up annual student of the month program

KEM Electric Cooperative recently concluded its Student of the Month program, a year-long initiative aimed at recognizing outstanding students across the cooperative's service area.

Throughout the school year, area schools and community members were invited to nominate students who they find to be outstanding in a variety of ways. Each month, one student was randomly selected to receive monetary sponsorship, thanks to a partnership between KEM Electric and Touchstone Energy Cooperative. The student then utilized the sponsorship money to help benefit their school – whether through classroom resources, extracurricular programs or other studentfocused initiatives.

"We're proud to celebrate these outstanding students and to support their schools in a way that reflects our cooperative values," says Marcy Sanders, manager of member relations.

Through the Touchstone Energy Student of the Month program students were nominated by their teachers, coaches and other community members. This year over 50 students were nominated for the program.

"It has been an impactful opportunity getting to highlight these students and learn more about each of their interests, skills and how they are helping make their community and school a brighter place," Sanders says.

KEM Electric recognizes all the students who were chosen for this year's Touchstone Energy Student of the Month:

Sara Pfeifle, a junior at Ashley Public School, was recognized for being a hard-working student around the school.

Annabelle Huber, a senior at Hazelton-Moffit-Braddock Public School, was recognized for being a hardworking student who is always willing to help in the school and around the community.

Leo Cadena, a kindergartener at Kidder County Public School, was recognized for being kind, smart and bringing others joy as well as being a great friend to all.

Jace Wald, a sixth grader at Linton Public School, was recognized for going above and beyond around the classroom and school.

Bentley Wald, a seventh grader at Napoleon Public School, was recognized for being kind and helpful around the school, community and farm.

Brady Pool, a junior at Strasburg Public School, was recognized for being kind, helpful and hardworking.

Cater Ketterling, a sophomore at Wishek Public School, was recognized for always being willing to help others and doing it with enthusiasm and dedication.

Conrad Richards, a sixth grader at Zeeland Public School, was recognized for being respectful and a good friend to others.

Congratulations to all who were nominated. KEM Electric looks forward to further supporting youth through programs in the future.
