Unusual setting for meeting

By Gary Howard
Golva City Council held its monthly meeting in an unusual setting on April 14. Due to a power outage, the Council met in the Noll Construction shop, where a generator provided lights and heat.

Mayor Joe Kreitinger called the meeting to order at 7 p.m. The first items to be dealt with included approving the agenda and reviewing and approving the minutes from the last meeting.

Next up was a discussion on a Home Rule Charter for the City of Golva. The discussion revolved around following the necessary steps before the matter can be put on the ballot to be voted on by the residents of Golva. At this time it looks like it will not be on the ballot this year unless the city decides to hold a special election.

Election correction

In the March 12 issue, we listed that Brad Maus was the incumbent for the Lone Tree School Board whose position was up for re-election, which was incorrect.

The Council moved on to a discussion about getting people lined up to do the mowing for the city this year. Kiffin Howard will be back to do mowing for the City. She will reach out to the Council to get more help if she needs it.

At this time the Council adjourned the regular meeting and convened the Tax Equalization meeting for the City of Golva. Tax Director Carla Beeler appeared before the Council to go through the various tables and show how the evaluations were calculated. There were some increases on the value of residential lots. This correction was needed to get the City in compliance with the states recommendations. County Commissioner Rory Farstveet appeared as well to answer any questions from the Council.

tions to declare the City of Golva's taxes equalized were passed.

The Tax Equalization meeting was adjourned and the regular Council meeting was re-convened.

The next item had to do with a resident's complaint about being charged for some mowing done on a lot. The discussion revolved around how many times the resident was charged for mowing and the costs involved. After an exchange of ideas on how to address the matter, it was decided a council member will speak with the resident to see if a solution can be found.

Council member Mariah Zachmann gave the Park Board update next. The Park Board received $2,000 from the Golden Valley County Park Board. She stated that one of the things the money could be used for is to paint the buildings at the park.

Golden Valley County Week Control Officer Mark Egan will meet with members of the Park Board and City to see where spraying needs to be done in the City.

There being no further business before the Council, the meeting was adjourned. The next meeting will be held Monday, May 11.
