Did You Know?

According to the National Weather Service, the summer solstice, which marks the official beginning of summer, occurs at the moment the earth's tilt toward the sun is at a maximum. As a result, on the day of the summer solstice, which in 2026 occurs on Sunday, June 21, the sun appears at its highest elevation with a noontime position. The precise moment the solstice occurs is when the sun is directly over the Tropic of Cancer. This year the sun will reach that point at 4:24 a.m. EDT. Though it's not always sunny on the summer solstice, when the sun is out throughout the solstice people in the Northern Hemisphere can expect more hours of sunlight than any other day of the year. That provides yet another reason to welcome the official arrival of summer.

Field-Days-26.

The sites' events will include observing the 100th anniversary of the Ceres spring wheat variety, which was the first spring wheat bred and released at the ND Agricultural Experiment Station. Ceres has had a major impact on wheat production in North Dakota over the last century, providing agricultural stability in the northern Great Plains.

"When L.R. Waldron released Ceres wheat in 1926, its yield and rust resistance made it a dominant spring wheat and established a genetic foundation that still shapes wheat breeding today," says Richard Horsley, head of NDSU's Department of Plant Sciences.

NDSU is an R1 research institution as defined by the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education.
