De Kok Named Executive Director Of North Dakota School Boards Association

The North Dakota School Boards Association (NDSBA) Board of Directors has named Amy De Kok as the association's next executive director. De Kok will begin the role July 1.

"Amy has been serving North Dakota school boards for many years, both in private practice and for the past seven years at the association. She is well-known amongst our membership, state-wide policy-makers, and association partners as one of North Dakota's leading experts in education law and policy," said NDSBA and West Fargo School Board President Patti Stedman. "Her long-standing commitment to our association's mission and our members will ensure a smooth transition for the association, and we couldn't be more excited for the future under her leadership."

De Kok has been with NDSBA since 2017 and currently serves as general counsel for the association. She has nearly twenty years of experience practicing law in North Dakota and Minnesota. De Kok graduated from William Mitchell College of Law in St. Paul, Minnesota, in 2005, and North Dakota State University in 2001.

The North Dakota School Boards Association is a leading advocate for local control in public education, serving public school districts across the state of North Dakota. NDSBA provides support to local school board members through professional development, resources, and legislative advocacy.

Area Students Level Up with Esports: A Collaboration between WRT and Fenworks

As technology continues to shape the landscape of education and extra-curricular activities, WRT is proud to announce its partnership with Fenworks to bring Esports opportunities to students. This collaboration marks a significant step forward in providing innovative and engaging experiences for our local youth while highlighting the importance of high-speed broadband internet connectivity.

Esports, or electronic sports, refers to competitive video gaming where players compete individually or as teams in various games. It's not just about playing games; it's about strategy, teamwork, and skill development. Esports has rapidly gained popularity worldwide, offering students a platform to showcase their talents and passion for gaming in a structured and competitive environment.

Through this collaboration, WRT and Fenworks are working together to provide students in Solen, Selfridge, Mobridge-Pollock, New Salem, and Triple Threat (Hazen, New Rockford-Sheyenne, and Garrison) public schools with access to high-quality esports programs. WRT is also working with other schools in our area as well, to develop technology and implement Esports programs. WRT is a member of the Broadband Association of North Dakota (BAND) and South Dakota Networks Communications (SDN), who were major sponsors of the 2024 Fenworks Esports State Tournaments in ND & SD, respectively.

WRT actively participates in programs aimed at empowering local youth and promoting education, and by leveraging WRT's state-of-the-art fiber optic network speeds, students can engage in online gaming competitions, connect with peers, and even participate in virtual tournaments. This partnership underscores the importance of reliable internet access in enabling students to pursue their interests and talents in the digital age.

"We are excited to partner with Fenworks to empower local students through Esports," says Troy Schilling, WRT CEO/General Manager. "Esports offers a unique opportunity for students to develop important skills such as critical thinking, communication, and teamwork while having fun and connecting with peers. By providing access to high-speed broadband internet, we aim to ensure that students in our communities can participate and thrive in the world of Esports."
