Did You Know?

Digging into a delicious ice cream sundae can be heavenly on a warm day. But such decadence sometimes comes with a price, most often in the form of a painful ice cream headache. Ice cream headaches occur when the cold ice cream moves across the roof of the mouth and back of the throat. Scientists are not quite certain what causes ice cream headaches, but some suggest that it involves cold ice cream temporarily altering blood flow. This constriction and expansion of blood vessels can cause pain. Once the body adapts to the change in temperature, the pain should subside. Eating ice cream slowly can help prevent ice cream headaches.

The basics of lifesaving CPR

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation, better known as CPR, is a life-saving technique that can be employed when someone goes into cardiac arrest or if a person's heart is not beating strongly enough to circulate blood to the organs and brain. The American Heart Association says more than 350,000 incidents of cardiac arrest occur outside of hospitals in the United States each year. Bystanders who are able to perform CPR can save a life by prolonging blood and oxygen flow until professional care can be administered.

What to do if you suspect a person's heart has stopped or they are not breathing?

The first step is to assess the situation and ask another person to call 911 or the local emergency service number for the country where you reside. If there is an automated external defibrillator (AED) nearby, have someone get it.

Next is to think of ABC to determine whether CPR should be administered, says the Cleveland Clinic.

• A (AIRWAY): Tilt the person's head back and check for any obstructions in the mouth or throat that could indicate choking.

• B (BREATHING): Lean in closely to the person's face and listen for breaths for 10 seconds. In addition, try to determine if their chest is rising and falling.

• C (CIRCULATION): Feel the side of the person's neck just below the jawline for a few seconds to check for a pulse.

It is vital to perform CPR if the person is not breathing and there is no pulse.

Chest compressions

Chest compressions are a key component of CPR that help blood reach vital organs until a regular heartbeat returns. The American Red Cross CPR guidelines recommends 100 to 120 chest compressions per minute, 30 at a time.

• Place two hands centered on the chest.

• Your shoulders should be directly over your hands with elbows locked.

• Compress the chest at least 2 inches.

• Follow the rate of compres-

MINUTES OF SPECIAL MEETING ESMOND CITY COUNCIL May 30, 2025

The city of Esmond held a special city council meeting on May 30, 2025 at 7:30 a.m. at the Esmond City Hall. Present were Mayor Ernest Suich; council members David Wolfe, Shari Wolfe, Roger Hill and Loren Preuss; City Auditor Leigh Wolfe Kaeding.

The agenda for the meeting was sewer grant engineering firm selection; Brownfields grant application review; and larger commercial dumpsters for city cleanup.

The city council reviewed three firms who had sent us proposals for the large sewer grant and removed one from our list. A list of questions will need to be answered from the remaining two firms before making our final selection.

The application for the Brownfields grant was reviewed and will now be sent to the Department of Environmental Quality for assistance in removing portions of the old Esmond Public School.

Following a discussion on commercial dumpsters for city cleanup and the many regulations and limitations for what can be placed in them, the city decided to forgo this service at this time.

A motion was made by Shari Wolfe and seconded by Loren Preuss to adjourn the meeting at 9:06 a.m. and the motion carried.

The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday, June 11, 2025 at 7 p.m. at Esmond City Hall.

Leigh Wolfe Kaeding
City Auditor

sions at 100 to 120 per minute. Songs that align with the recommended rate include "Stayin' Alive," "Dancing Queen," "I Will Survive," and "Can't Stop the Feeling!" Humming one of these songs can keep you at the correct tempo.

• Allow the person's chest to return to a normal position after each compression.

What to know about mouth-to-mouth

Recommendations vary regarding mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The American Red Cross advises giving two breaths in between each set of 30 compressions.

• Open the airway to a past-neutral position by tilting the head and lifting the chin.

• Pinch the nose shut, take a normal breath, and make a complete seal over the person's mouth with your mouth.

• Ensure each breath lasts about one second and makes the chest rise; allow air to exit before offering the next breath.

The American Heart Association now recommends bystanders perform only hands-only CPR when a person goes into cardiac arrest. This means just chest compressions. Studies show people are less willing to help if they think they have to give mouth-to-mouth to strangers, and the AHA notes rescue breaths delay compressions. There's also the increased risk of disease transmission. Certain medical experts say that in many cases, mouth-to-mouth does more harm than good when performed by untrained individuals.

How long should CPR continue?

CPR should continue until the person starts breathing or a paramedic arrives. Switch off with another person if you get tired. Consistent CPR performed for as long as it takes offers the best chances that a person will survive.
