

Words For Thought...

By Editor Terry Schwartzenberger

I Guess It's Once Again Time

It's nearly mid October, and by most counts the area has experienced some areas of frost/freeze, but not a general overall freeze. Although mornings have been chilly, daytime temperatures rebound, resulting in a run of very nice fall days.

However, for those of us who have lived in these parts, know that any day now the weather may change on a dime. Knowing that, even though I've been pushing off getting ready for the winter season, this past weekend I cleared out the summer garden, except for the carrots. Those will be harvested at a later date. I also took to winterizing the camper, and once again calling that season a wrap. I also started stowing summer things such as lawn furniture and chairs to their winter safe homes, all in preparation for what's to

Even though I'm hoping for some more nice autumn days, it's time to get ready for the lingering colder temperatures as well as some white stuff.

As for me, I could do without snow until right prior to Christmas, which is a bit over two months away. One of my latest fall sayings, and especially since we've been experiencing very nice fall weather, I'm quick to point out that for every day which passes, we are one day closer to spring 2026.

Here's What I Have To Say ... By Jessica Faye

For years I was obsessed with fall, not because of the weather, but because it was PUMPKIN season! I loved all the things pumpkin: dessert bars, cereal, flavored coffee drinks, pie, sweet pretzels; really anything! Well, I think I got overloaded with pumpkin and I've moved on. I'll still take the pie, ooh and the ice cream sweet treats, but other than that, I've switched gears and started using apples galore.

This year we were lucky to receive a few bags of apples from neighbors. The kids down the apples, whether it be a whole apple, slices with peanut butter and "ants" (aka raisins or chocolate chips) or slices dipped in good ole' carmel, which is by far my favorite way to eat an apple, ha!

If the kids don't eat them all fast enough, I've been making apple sweet treats like carmel apple cheesecake bars, apple tart and sauted cinnamon apples topped with whipped cream. But also have tried dicing the fruit into salads and pairing it in our supper menu, such as the recipe with pork chops and apple slices - which I never would have thought would be good, but it pairs well. I will try not to buy everything apple, like I once did with pumpkin, so we don't get overloaded again and look forward to another fall season with apple, and maybe even sneak in a few more pumpkin options again next year.
