TISS JOHNSON

Wednesday, Lynn Frey attended the live-stock sale in Lemmon and that evening the Christ Lutheran Quarterly Voters meeting in Bison.

Thursday, he made a trip to New Leipzig. Friday, he traveled to Lemmon and later to Hettinger to attend the KNDC Farm and Home Show.

Saturday, Lynn met up with Monte Frey in Hettinger, and they watched the SDSU/NDSU football game.

Matt Dobitz called on Morell Hirning and Tiss Johnson Tuesday afternoon.

Early Wednesday morning, Morell and Tiss made a trip to Glen Ullin and later attended the funeral and luncheon for And Mack in Mott.

Saturday morning, those who helped them walk pastures included Alvin Mutschelknaus, Curt Friedt, Gary Friedt, Dusty Dukart, and Albert Luithle.

Sunday morning, those helping trail cattle home included Gary,

Curt, Terry, Kelly, and Casey Friedt and Axle, along with Josh and Paul Wollman, Matt Dobitz and Blake, and Alvin Mutschelknaus. Gary returned home, while the others helped sort and work calves. Melissa Wollman, Ava, Hosea, and Nevaeh helped serve lunch and brought dessert, and Josh stayed to help Morell with last-minute tasks.

Albert and Pearl Luithle visited Morell and Tiss Sunday afternoon.

Friday, Bridget Keller and the twins went to Lemmon.

Saturday, Bridget, the twins, and Bodee drove to Hettinger in the morning.

Sunday, Bridget, Korbin, Bodee, Teagan, and Terek Keller attended church, then drove to Bison for the pumpkin festival soup lunch at the Bentley Building.

Jim, Patsy, Christi, and Zabrina Miller had supper at Summerville Saturday evening.

Jim made a trip to Scranton Tuesday.

He and Patsy traveled to Lemmon and later to Morristown Thursday.

Friday afternoon, they played pinochle at the Senior Center in Hettinger, accompanied by Zabrina.

BETTY OLSON

This week felt like fall usually does with temperatures from the 50s to 70s. We started the week with Bible Study at Lester and Sharon Longwood’s Sunday evening with Eric Seim, Duane Harris, Ben Weichmann, and Brad and Linda Abelseth, who were visiting from Huron. Brad and Linda shared their health issues, and thankfully they are doing well now.

The guys weaned calves Monday morning at our east place with Jeremy and Carrie Stadheim, Molly and Matt Kerner, Bill Holt, and Ron and Jace Jenson helping and hauling them home to the lot at the old place, where Reub waited by the gate for each load. The wind blew hard all day, and Missy and Amanda fed everyone at the shop after the calves were home. It’s nice to ranch in the middle of nowhere where neighbors are always ready to help.

The guys helped Bill Holt ship his calves Tuesday morning. Reub and I went to Buffalo late that afternoon to watch the Hettinger/Scranton Night Hawks volleyball game against the Harding County Ranchers. Casey rode to town with us so he could come home with Missy, who was already in Buffalo. Our granddaughter Acalia Olson is a Night Hawk, and these are fun games to watch. We also got to visit with our son Sage, Alaina Olson, and friends.

Our friend Dr. Gerald Sailer lost his sweet wife, Jan Sailer, age 87, of Hettinger, who passed away Wednesday morning, October 22, at the Five Counties Nursing Home in Lemmon. Their family has our sympathy.

Reub and I went to Lemmon Wednesday morning to take my old computer to the Connection to see if Jack Anderson could make it connect to the internet, and we took an old graduation card of Clarence “Jack” Blomberg for Jack to give to his mother, Koreen Anderson. Clarence was Koreen’s uncle and my father’s cousin. After leaving Lemmon, we went back to Hettinger to eat lunch at the Legion. Reub got a board from the lumber yard to finish the job he’s doing on our basement door, then we went to Runnings for a new doorknob for our entryway. We saw our friend Jim Brown at the lumber yard, then stopped at White Drug and Reub got his squeeze from his cousin Roxie Finck. On the way home, we stopped in Reeder for coffee with the Prairie Pioneers and saw Jim Brown again and several other friends.

The neighbors helped Bill Holt wean his heifer calves and preg-test his cows on Thursday, and everything went well. I went to Reva to pick up Beau and Hannah Doll and Copper off the school bus, and it’s always fun to visit with neighbors at the store waiting for their kids. Deb Wammen was there, and I thanked her for the pictures she sent me of boards with old brands they found when the steel blew off the barn at the JB Ranch. My eyes aren’t good enough to see the brands, but Deb is going to try to get closer pictures so I can. My grandfather Clem White was a neighbor to the Jones brothers, and his brand might be on those boards. We are so blessed to live here in Harding County with all these friendly folks always ready to help. I’d been smelling skunk every time I went by the brooder house to take care of my chickens, and Thursday evening Taz shot two of the stinky buggers right beside the coop, so I don’t smell them now.

Friday was a beautiful warm day with no wind, so I took advantage of it and washed laundry to hang on the clothesline. The clothes dried quickly and smelled so good when I brought them inside to fold and put away. The guys were busy feeding and winterizing everything to get ready for winter. I took a long walk in the beautiful weather and picked up petrified wood and other pretty rocks for my huge rock pile. I wish I was as handy as the guys who built the Petrified Park at Lemmon. Our great-grandson Knox likes rocks too, so when I’m gone, the rock pile belongs to him.

Saturday was another beautiful day with a high of 71 degrees, so I washed bedding to hang on the clothesline and get everything clean before the frost sets in. It was so nice I took a long walk across the prairie, and when I crossed Olson Creek where it runs into the South Grand River, I got my shoes wet. Ordinarily, the creek is dry this time of year, but with all that wonderful rain we got, it still has water in it.

Sen. Sam Marty’s daughter Lindsey was in church again Sunday morning but was flying home that afternoon, so they didn’t stay to visit. She was in church with Sam and Leah last Sunday too, and it was so nice to see her.
