

Attorney General Announces Settlement With Company Behind Deceptive Invoice Solicitations

Last week, Attorney General Drew Wrigley announced a settlement with Lake Holdings, LLC following an investigation into the company's distribution of deceptive invoice solicitations displaying the names Domain Networks, North Dakota Domain Directory, and My Safe Domain. These invoice solicitations were sent to many North Dakota entities, including small businesses, public entities, churches, and non-profit organizations.

mailers that closely resembled legitimate invoices to North Dakota entities, seeking to solicit payment for services that the recipients had never ordered or authorized. These invoice solicitations used formal billing language and payment deadlines creating the false impression that payment was required. "Churches, nonprofit organizations, and small businesses work hard to serve their communities, often with limited staff and resources," said Wrigley. "These entities should not be subjected to deceptive marketing practices that abuse their trust or exploit their limited resources or staff turnover," adds Wrigley. Many of the invoice solicitations sent by Lake Holdings were designed to create the impression and assumption that it was an invoice from the recipient's website domain provider or domain registrar. Under the terms of the agreement, Lake Holdings has agreed to make significant changes to all their mailers to comply with North Dakota law and eliminate their deceptive nature and appearance. Further, the company has agreed to pay $19,650 in civil penalties and provides each North Dakota entity who made payments in response to the mailers since March 1, 2022, with the option to receive a full refund. The settlement resolves alleged violations of the Consumer Fraud Law, North Dakota Century Code chapter 51-15, including the prohibition on invoice solicitations in N.D.C.C. § 51-15-02.2, without the company admitting any wrongdoing. "This settlement ensures that the company is held accountable and prevents it from continuing practices that exploit organizations that are working hard to serve our communities," Wrigley said. "In addition, the settlement will allow any North Dakota entity that was misled into making payments to Domain Networks, North Dakota Domain Directory, or My Safe Domain, an opportunity to recover the money lost," Wrigley adds. Lake Holdings, LLC, is required to notify all North Dakota entities that are entitled to a refund under the Settlement and provide these entities with an option to receive a full refund. These notices should be sent out within the next thirty days. Wrigley urges all consumers, businesses, and organizations to carefully review all invoices and verify the legitimacy of any payment demand before submitting payment. Any individual or entity who believes they have received a deceptive invoice solicitation may file a complaint with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division at www.attorney-general.nd.gov or call 701-328-3404. The Attorney General's Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division is dedicated to protecting North Dakota residents from misleading, deceptive, or unlawful practices in connection with the sale or advertisement of goods or services by enforcing the state's antitrust and consumer protection laws.

How North Dakotans Can Make Most Of Their Health Coverage

Enrollment periods for most health insurance plans have wrapped up and with another coverage year underway, North Dakotans are being urged to learn more about how their plans work so they can maximize the benefits. Experts said one common mistake is people not knowing specialty coverage like dental and vision is not often included in their main health care plan.

erage for dental and vision, because it can prevent big bills for expensive procedures later. Other tips include making sure you have received your insurance cards to avoid appointment delays and billing issues. Health care consumers might still feel reluctant to turn to apps and other online tools featuring artificial intelligence.

Suzette Krapp, an insurance agent in Jamestown, who mainly helps Medicare enrollees, said it is the opposite for those clients because of their needs. But in general, it is not rare for people to assume they have coverage for something when they actually do not.

Amy Jordan, vice president of consumer experience for UnitedHealthcare, said they can be useful when a customer wants to know more about what's in their plan. "There's a lot of messaging that's coming through our app as we increase our integration and our data and we build AI solutions on top," Jordan noted. "That's really where the insights and the opportunities can happen via those digital tools."

A 2024 poll from the PAN Foundation's Center for Patient Research found seven in ten adults with health insurance were not confident navigating their health care plan. Of the group, twenty-five percent said they wanted more education to understand how out-of-pocket maximums and deductibles work. UnitedHealthcare contributes to our fund for reporting on health care.

Krapp stressed understanding the options through any insurance carrier is important and added local independent agents are good sources because they know how annual changes affect options for area providers. She added if you can afford it, you should quickly add cov-

Dakota Datebook: Norwegian-American North Dakota Ladies Aid Societies

Beginning in the 1870s, many Norwegian immigrants established Lutheran congregations in North Dakota. Only the men voted and managed those congregations. The women were organized by the pastors into the women's society, in Norwegian called the Kvindeforening. By the 1930s it was renamed the Ladies' Aid Society. In some places the women organized their societies before the men did. Then the women urged the men to start the congregations. The purpose of the women's society was first foreign missions, then local missions, Bible study, prayer sessions and church education. For the Bisbee public school the local society raised almost three hundred dollars. In the early 1900s both the Grafton and the Northwood societies promoted and raised funds for their town Deaconess Hospitals. During World War I some societies worked closely with the Red Cross.

Bue Homnes sat on a national board of a WMF. Later she served as North Dakota District president. After her death in 1951, Concordia College of Moorhead named a room after Frida Bue Homnes. Often the parish women raised more money than church offerings. During the 1890s depression the Kvindeforening kept many congregations in the black. During the 1930s Great Depression, many societies paid the pastors' salaries. The women sponsored bake sales, bazaars, and ice cream socials. They also sold aprons, mittens, quilts and tablecloths. Besides church suppers, picnics, and church school festivals, these women offered dinners for public schools, public auctions, county fairs and Fourth of July celebrations.

In the early years, the pastor's wife led the Kvindeforening. By 1915 lay women served as presidents. On one farm, a husband firmly admonished his wife not to get involved in the new women's society, but his wife drove off in the buggy. Hours later she returned as president, which she remained for many years. By 1910 national Norwegian Lutheran church bodies organized national societies under the title, Women's Mission Federation, the WMF. In 1917, from Crosby, Frida

These societies were also active in summer parochial schools and Sunday School. An anniversary publication of North Prairie Church in Velva shows a photograph of three women and captions them as president, vice president and secretary of the Ladies Aid Society. On another page, the same photograph captions them as the Sunday School Board of Education: superintendent, teacher and teacher. By 1940 many city congregations had given their women the vote. By 1955 the last rural congregation had given its women the vote. Today the Lutheran women's societies remain steadfast in foreign missions, Bible study, church education, quilt-making, and tasty food.
