Spring Light Goose Conservation Order

North Dakota's spring light goose conservation order opens Feb. 21 and continues through May 10.

Residents must have a 2025-26 (valid through March 31) or 2026-27 (required April 1) combination license; or a small game, and general game and habitat license. Resident youth under age 16 only need the general game and habitat license. The 2026-27 license is available for purchase beginning March 15. In addition, all hunters need an electronic waterfowl restoration stamp.

Nonresidents need a 2026 spring light goose conservation order license. The cost is $50 and valid statewide. Nonresidents who hunt in spring remain eligible to buy a fall season license. The spring license does not count against the 14-day fall waterfowl hunting season regulation.

Nonresident youth under 16 can purchase a license at the resident fee. A federal duck stamp is not required for either residents or nonresidents. Yet, like resident hunters, nonresidents also need an electronic waterfowl restoration stamp.

Resident and nonresident licenses are available online at the North Dakota Game and Fish Department website, gf.nd.gov.

Hunters must register annually with the Harvest Information Program prior to hunting in each state. The HIP number obtained for North Dakota's spring conservation order is also valid for North Dakota's fall hunting season. The number can be obtained online on the Game and Fish website.

The spring conservation order is only open to light geese – snows, blues and Ross's. Species identification is important because white-fronted and Canada geese travel with light geese. The conservation order is closed to whitefronts, Canada geese, swans and all other migratory birds.

Dakota Attitude

Fred Usselman

Interview: July 7, 2011 County: Morton City: Fort Rice

Dad Didn't Turn Anyone Away

Fred Usselman tells how his father, Pius, came to operate a store in Fort Rice. "He came from Odessa, Russia, in 1910, stayed with some relatives for a little while, then he helped in a grocery store in Solen just a short time, and I guess he got a little money, and that was when he bought the store over here.

"Actually, this was a pretty good-size town. Dad used to buy cream from the farmers, eggs, and all that stuff. I used to candle eggs for him. Help move some the cream cans around the farmers brought in. He would open early and get home late. It was seven days a week. Sunday afternoon he would open up, and if somebody wanted something he would go over and open the store for him. We used to go out and butcher our own hogs and cattle for the store.

"We had a tornado that came through in 1953 that torn the town up real bad. It blew the store away, too. It was rebuilt, not like it was though. He never quit. He kept doing things all the time. He retired in '78. He had the store from 1917 to 1978." Pius died in 1982. He was 93.

"I still have bills in the basement. People got stuff and never did pay him. If someone needed groceries but couldn't pay, Pius did not turn them away."

Fred, born in 1932, grew up in Fort Rice. He spent four years in the Navy. Fred married Myrtle (from near Myrtle Beach, South Carolina) and worked in the shipyards and later for Southern Bell Telephone. Fred has been retired since 1987 and comes back to Fort Rice from his home in South Carolina every summer between June and October. They live in the house where he grew up.

Do his South Carolina friends ask about North Dakota? "Bunch of times." What do you tell them? "Come see us. A lot of them come by. Some have been back more than once." Asked if Myrtle likes North Dakota, Fred says, "Yeah. Absolutely."

(Editor's Note: The following profiles of North Dakota residents were collected by author James Puppe between 2004-2018, covering 617 subjects and 113,000 miles. He has given permission for his book to be serialized in North Dakota Newspapers at no charge.
