Dear Patrons,
Another school year will end this Sunday with the high school graduation commencement activities at the Hebron School gymnasium. This is always such an exciting time of year when the seniors graduate from our school and move on to the next chapter in their lives. This year we will have 15 seniors graduating from our school.

I know that the seniors can't wait for graduation to be done so they can move on to the next adventures in their lives. I know when I was that age, I was the same way. I could not wait until I could graduate and get out of school and start pursuing other things. At that age you think you know it all, and despite what your parents say you think you know what is best for you.

As I look back on it now getting out of school is not all cracked up to be what you think it is going to be. Now that you are out of school you either must go to college, join the military, or get a job. Now all the carefree worries you had when you were in high school are out the window. Now you start to find out that high school wasn't such a bad gig after all. There were no worries in high school and mom and dad took care of everything, including a lot of your expenses. Now a lot of parents start expecting the student to get a job and start paying some of their own bills or to help pay for your college expenses. Not so easy anymore. A lot of students never had to worry about any of this in high school. This is all part of the transition into adulthood. We have all gone through this in one form or another in our lives. We have all gone about it in many different ways as well.

What I am getting at is sometimes in life we are in such a hurry to get finished with something and move on to something else that we don't find out until later how good we really had it. When you move on and go to college and can't wait to graduate to get out of there and start the next phase of your life the process starts all over again. Now you are pursuing a career and now have taken on more responsibility and expenses. Now you start to find out that college wasn't so bad after all. When you join the workforce and many years later reflect on your school experiences you start to realize that your high school and college experiences were some of the best times of your life. At the time you want to get through them as fast as you can and move on to other things. Only when you get older and more experienced do you realize that those carefree days when you were in school were some of the best times you ever had.

What happens when you get together with your classmates from high school or college many years after graduation? What do you do at your high school or college class reunions? I will tell you what we all do. We all sit around and talk and laugh about all the good times we had when we were in school. We have all done this and will continue to do this. What does this tell you about school? It tells us that school wasn't such a bad gig after all. We did have a lot of fun in school. It just takes age and experience for us to realize that. At the time we wanted to get done with school and move on. It is all a part of the transition into adulthood and the workforce.

Why am I talking about all of this? I want our seniors to understand that rushing from one thing to the next is a part of life, but to remember where you came from and the people who helped you along that journey. Also, remember the good times you had in school and cherish the friendships you have made. Those friendships will last a lifetime. It is easy to forget about those things as you rush to move on to new adventures. Make sure you keep in touch with those classmates and make sure you attend those class reunions because those will be some of the best times you have reminiscing about the great times you had when you were in school.

I want to thank the staff at Hebron Public School for the work they have done over the years with our seniors. I also want to thank the parents of the seniors for your dedication to your child's education and overall well-being. Without you as the guiding force none of this would be possible. A final note to all our seniors. Your best is yet to come, but don't forget about the past. Thanks everyone! Visit with you next week, God willing. Make it a great day... or not. The choice is yours.
